

A Canadian non-profit that brings people together to improve spinal cord injury research, innovation, and care, turning new ideas into better supports for people living with spinal cord injuries.

We believe that involving people with lived experience of spinal cord injury in all aspects of research and innovation helps to ensure the end result is useful and effective. That's why we'd like to connect with you!

Praxis Spinal Cord Institute

6200-818 West 10th Avenue, Vancouver BC V5Z 1M9
Cell: 250-878-0354
praxisinstitute.org

Get involved!

Join our database of people with SCI!

Learn about opportunities to participate in designing new innovation, shaping and informing SCI research, and informing standards of care.

Focus Groups

Share your unique perspective to help guide the development and design of innovative new products that are intended to improve the treatment, care, and daily lives of people with spinal cord injuries.

Research Opportunities

Participate in research that aims to improve the data about spinal cord injuries, define the priorities of people with SCI, lead to better health outcomes, and help inform policies that affect the SCI community.

Leadership

Grow your leadership chops!

Take a research advocacy course, gain experience as a contributor to research, or apply to become a Praxis Fellow.

